JENNY
What are you doing here?

SARIKA
I'm sorry?

JENNY
What is it you're after?

SARIKA
Will wanted me to meet you -

JENNY
No. That's not it. You want something else.

SARIKA
Nothing sinister, I don't think.
Will's a wonderful guy.

JENNY
I'm aware of that. Thanks, for this.

(Pause)
I always wanted a daughter.

SARIKA
It's a very male world here.

JENNY
You think so? I try to fill it with something approaching love.
I have felt, with Will, over the years, I have felt him slipping away from me. Blaming me for things I'd no part in.

SARIKA
Oh, he loves you very much.
You're very... close.

JENNY
You're an only child?

SARIKA
Not at all, no. One of six, actually.

JENNY
Yes, this was it. We were all too close.

He didn't make many friends, we were so absorbed in our concerns.

SARIKA
You gave him a very special childhood.

JENNY
I felt I had to keep him busy, busy all the time.

SARIKA
Robin or Will?

JENNY
Oh, I need to - to sit down. Oh, I'm drunk.

SARIKA
Have more. It's ok.

JENNY
I shouldn't be saying any of this.

SARIKA
You don't have to say anything.

JENNY
Everything had to be set aside for the work.

You probably think this is just a pretty place, a refuge. It is. But it's part of something, some higher purpose.

SARIKA
I don't follow you.

JENNY
You wonder how you allow yourself to become what you become, but each step makes perfect sense. I fell for Robin. Seemed so clear. He was more alive than anyone I knew.

And Will. There's hardly any of me in him, I'm educated, okay, but I never - I could never - challenge anything, always on the outside and when Rob, when this thing, when Rob -

(She looks at SARIKA)

SARIKA
Go on.

JENNY
I have fought all my life for what you see.
